Treatment by Dr. Zimmerman Caused Brainstorm, Declares Alienist
Springfield, May 21.—Driven mad by the treatment which he received from Dr. Henry Zimmerman, Jennie G. Zimmerman shot him to death while suffering from a brainstorm. Dr. Paul Waterman, a Hartford, Conn., alienist, testified today.
After listening to a kind-word hypothesis, the alienist declared that the young woman inherited a tendency to this disease from her mother, and that the educational, social and spiritual influences of her life were such as to bring it to life. The defense was considered to have moved heavily by Dr. Waterman's testimony, as the alienist has maintained throughout the trial that she had no recollection of the actual shooting or events immediately following it.

RAILROADS SUGGEST RELEASES FROM SUGAR CANNING

"IT'S A SAD STORY, MATE!"

(THERE WAS A MAN IN OUR TOWN, HE HAD AN ACUTE BRAIN, HE JUMPED INTO A BRAHMA BUSH AND GAVE A HOWL OF PAIN.)

Walker D. Hines, who recently resigned as Director-General of Railroads, suggests several possible remedies for the present transportation angle in a program to the Boston American today. The telegram was sent from New York to answer to a letter from the railroad men, who were in the city.

By WALKER D. HINES.

In reply to your request for my views on the present transportation situation, I wish to emphasize two distinct phases.

First, the acquisition of large amounts of additional equipment is of the highest importance and it is assumed the new transportation act will be so framed by the Interstate Commerce Commission as to promote the earliest acquisition of this equipment. But this equipment cannot be constructed for many months, and hence it cannot aid in ending the present slump. In fact, the companies are unable to handle adequately the equipment they already have.

The second trouble is due to the other phase, which is the partial failure of the railroads to have been successful in continuing the unified handling of the traffic, which prevailed during Federal control, and very largely because of the shortage of employees due to the disbanding of the Federal Railroad Administration.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has assumed control of the equipment and the present attitude of many former employees is likely to change as soon as the Labor Board can dispose of the wage matter. In fact, it is to be hoped that they will return without waiting for the decision of the Labor Board. This certainly is a time when everybody ought to give attention to a fair test of the new transportation act.

U. S. Must Return to Rail Control, Declares Sims

Washington, May 21.—The opinion that grows here that the collapse of the transportation system of the country is a forerunner of a resumption of government operation. High officials are known to hold the view that the appeal of the railroads for the Interstate Commerce Commission to exercise its emergency powers is an admission that they cannot function.

The complete collapse of the railroads is seen after their return to their private owners conclusively demonstrates the need for government ownership and operation. In the opinion of House Speaker Charles W. Rains of Tennessee, Mr. Sims was chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission during the Federal operation. He is a declared statement, written exclusively for the National Review, Mr. Sims declares private ownership and operation is a demonstrated failure and that government ownership and operation is a better alternative. The public is to be assured of adequate transportation at reasonable rates.

SAYS GIRL MIND DEFY SUGAR PROFITEER IN FRUIT CANNING

Whom afraid of a sugar shortage? Not the fair canning experts of Simmons College. They say housewives do not need sugar to put up preserves.

"Sugar for canning," a mere suggestion," say these experts of the jam jar and the syrup preserved loaf.

"We went without sugar to beat the Germans and we can go without it to beat the profiteers," is their ultimatum.

More August authority comes from Miss Tina Dow, head of the ordinary department of the domestic science department of Simmons College. It is merely a favor. The aid theory that an equal amount of sugar is necessary to keep the fruit from fermenting has been exploded long ago with the introduction of the cold pack and other sugarless methods.

"Second, perfect fruit contains enough natural sugar to act as a self preservative, provided that the proper process is followed.

Here is the best canning method advocated by Miss Dow to combat the sugar situation:

SINGLE TAX PLAN URGED HERE

Would Produce $35,000,000 Annually in Boston, Says Professor Johnson

The single tax plan of an excise on the privilege of holding land idle was advanced before the Mayor's Committee on New Sources of Revenue by Professor Lewis Johnson of Harvard. In his argument in favor of this solution of the city's financial difficulties, the Harvard economist said:

"Such an excise would tap a fund amounting to $13,000,000 annually in Boston alone. It would open the way to a reduction of the burden of real estate. It could be easily collected.

"An excise of the kind I advocate would take from no one except in proportion to the cash value of publicly-made opportunities maintained in the city. The individual who is only on the whole able to pay it.

"It would strengthen the sanctity of just property rights and encourage land owning for useful purposes. It would relieve producers and consumers of paying twice for the privilege of using the land. It would relieve the city of the burden of the land. It would relieve the city of the burden of the land.

National Council Report Thanks Supporters of Tague

Resolve

That the financial accounts of the Friends of Irish Freedom are handed in a businesslike way and that every cent has been accounted for is the substance of a report issued to subscribers in the National Council and other parts of the country by the National Council.

Other resolves passed by the National Council and ordered sent to the Irish and American papers read:

"That the friends of Irish Freedom be urged to exercise the power upon the part of an invader of the Irish Republic by the exercise of right upon the part of such invader in exercise of such power."

"That the public thank of this, the supreme body of the Friends of Irish Freedom, be tendered to the eighty-five Congressmen, headed by Hon. Champ Clark, who signed the communication described in the foregoing report, and to the Congressional Tague of Massachusetts for the introduction of his resolution."

"That the warm appreciation and recognition of the National Council be extended to Captain Daniel T. O'Connell of Boston for the splendid services which he has rendered and continues to render as director of our bureau at Washington."

National Vice-President Richard J. Joyce of the Ancient Order of Hibernians today announced that there will be more than 125 guests at the banquet to be tendered to Judge James Derry, national president of the order, at the Quincy House Saturday evening.

A telegram signed by Patrick F. Hastings, president; Edward J. Dalton, vice-president; Patrick J. Cassidy, secretary; Martin D. Judge, treasurer, of the Michael J. Davis Branch of the Friends of Irish Freedom was today sent to Congressman John J. Rousselle of Massachusetts notifying him that 500 members of that organization "make in the interest of justice for your vote and support in favor of Mann Bill, 847, which provides salaries of minister and consuls to Republic of Ireland."

'Act' in Cast of 'Susan Lenox' Killed

One of the most important actors in "Susan Lenox" at the Arlington Theatre, who played opposite Alina Telford in one of the biggest scenes, was accidentally killed, being run over by an automobile while on the way to the theatre. The death of this character brought to light the fact that despite his prominence in the cast his real name was not known to any of the other actors. "Bill" was the big white actor, who supposedly saves watch-dog who leaps into the room, whence Susan Lenox is about to escape from her drunken husband, John Ferguson, in the first act. His engagement in "Susan Lenox" was his first appearance before the footlights.

Filene's—Filene values keep the faith!

FILENE VALUES keep the faith with you, the customer, by taking advantage of every break in the market; they keep the faith by passing these savings along to you in whole and not in part; they keep the faith by passing by unworthy merchandise which can be bought "under-price" today, for such merchandise is not good value no matter how low the price is. Filene values keep the faith by putting prices up more slowly and down more quickly than costs demand. They keep the faith by marking goods down while they are in demand and when YOU want them and not when their usefulness has passed.

They are keeping faith today just as they did 30 years ago with the same result: "Your money goes farther at Filene's."

READY more than a week before the holiday, piling enjoyment upon economy—

570 women's and misses' worsted NEW JERSEY SUITS styles we have sold freely at many dollars more, at the hard-to-believe price of $21.75

WHY the maker should have sold the suits at a loss we do not know. Probably he needed ready money. Certainly it was not because he was afraid the suits would be left on his hands, because they are tried-and-true styles that we hope to have again in the fall, and perhaps even next spring, for really good jersey suits like these do not go out of style.

NEW YORK GLOBE NOW

SELLS FOR 3 CENTS

New York, May 21.—Beginning today the New York Evening Globe advanced its price to three cents a copy. In an announcement by the paper the reasons were given as follows:

"At two cents, the price today, the sum of all the penalties of the paper for the New York Evening Globe advanced its price to three cents a copy. In an announcement by the paper the reasons were given as follows:

"This is fair neither to the advertiser nor to the reader. The advertiser carries more than his fair share of the burden. The reader gets less news and comment and features than readers of a first rate newspaper are entitled to. Because the demand for paper is greater than the supply, no newspaper that commands popular support can get enough paper at a price as low as it can use if it prints as many copies as it can sell."

"The very great advance in the cost of labor and everything entering into making a newspaper further to increase the domination of the advertising contents of the newspaper papers today."

"The New York Evening Globe has come in the judgment of the Globe to restore more of the balance of the newspaper. In continuing the struggle against unbalanced news, the Globe has decided to raise its price to three cents. It intends hereafter to give them more than three cents worth of news."

City Torn by Controversy Over Future of Municipal Electric Plant

Some striking revelations on a scheme to force the city out of ownership were made at a meeting of the City Council last night to consider the report of Professor F. C. Jackson, of Massachusetts Institute of Technology on the terms of the municipal plan.

An aftermath of the 11th session which was held at the city hall, was the re-creation of a committee on the subject of the city's electric plant. The committee was organized before the meeting last night and its first business was to consider the report of Professor Jackson, of Massachusetts Institute of Technology on the terms of the municipal plan.

 Ted Tewksbury, recently of the Brookline Golf Club, did not win the 18-hole golf tournament at the Country Club today. He was a close second, but he was a brave man.

Tewksbury was a finalist in the recent Woodland tournament and he is a real golfer, fully capable of making a good score. He was not in the best of luck today. He even hit a hole in one, but he was not in the best of luck today.

The point of the above is that Tewksbury had a very bad day at Brookline. In fact, he was not in the best of luck today. He even hit a hole in one, but he was not in the best of luck today.

TODAY!

Important News for Men Being Open to Buy and Replenish Our Stocks with New, Fresh Merchandise

We have gone into the market and closed some wonderful deals for High Grade Merchandise that the sudden, almost overnight, price shift in certain lines has made possible.

White's is known to be the store in New England for transactions on a big scale, hence manufacturers faced by cancelled orders and high rates for borrowed money turn to us for an outlet in their emergencies.

The head of our Men's Clothing Department left last Thursday on a buying trip to three of the important centers for Men's Clothing. He had great success. Read!

Three Big Purchases of Men's High-Grade All-Wool SPRING and SUMMER Suits Today at 34.50

One Purchase in Rochester One Purchase in Philadelphia One Purchase in New York

Rushed to Boston by special delivery in order to be here on time. No time to draw pictures—no time to send out special notices. No time for anything but to get this announcement in plain, direct language to the American as fast as the pencil can fly over the paper and the legs of the messenger boy carry it. Only a few weeks ago the wholesale price of every suit in these purchases was considerably higher than $34.50—our sale price today.

Hundreds of these Suits are at 1/2 price Many of them are at less than 1/2 price

The important thing to know is that they are the finest qualities of materials from the finest makers of ready-to-wear men's clothing in the United States. We guarantee every suit to be all wool. We guarantee every suit just as strongly as we guarantee our $65 or $75 suits—for satisfactory service. You know a few weeks ago the least you could get a good suit for was $50 or $60. And they weren't any better than they ought to be. Judge, then, what this sale means.

What does the Sale include?

There are styles for young men who "dress up" and men who are, as they say, "conservative." There are single and double-breasted suits. There are fine, smooth worsted materials. There are unfinished worsteds. There are cassimeres, tweed effects and flannels. There are plain colors, mixtures, plaid effects, grays, browns and greens.

We wish we could have secured 1000 more than we did

Don't have any vain regrets. You know how careful we are of every statement in our announcements, and we say to you this Sale justifies a change in your plans for today in order to see and get one or two of these Suits.

BLOOM DEFEATS CONFIREY AT FENWAY A. A.

Phil Bloom, Brooklyn lightweight, scored another victory when he defeated Frankie Confirey of New York in a twelve round bout at the Fenway A. A. show at Mechanics Building. It was the first time on a card which had two substitutions and plenty of dreary boxing.

Bloom carried the fighting in the first round and scored a knock-out in the second. Confirey entered the ring with a plaster on his nose. Bad nose was badly punished in a recent contest. Bloom naturally directed his attack to Confirey's nose and soon had that important part of the anatomy bleeding freely.

Confirey fought in flashes. He scored with some wild blows which landed his opponent. The crowd of Boston fans, however, was good one. The crowd there were some who seemed to have been given a draw because it was game.

Star Bout Failed to Materialize

The anticipated feature of the night was a contest between New York's Phil Bloom and Brooklyn's Frankie Confirey. Bloom was expected to win, but the fight was abandoned due to a cut on Confirey's nose.

Joe Ritchie of New York was the young man who opposed Confirey. Ritchie is tough and willing and clean game. But the last Johnny Ritchie or Joe Lynch for that matter, Ritchie stopped everything in a hurry and to offer for nine rounds before Moore decided the affair had gone far enough and awarded the honors to Chancy.

There were a few other fights in the card. Walter Blum of Brooklyn and Chico West, Brooklyn's new star. There were a few other fights in the card. It looks like a another act in the third round before Moore stopped the fight. Bloom's victory was a decisive one. He showed great skill and power throughout the fight. Confirey's defense was poor, and he was unable to land any effective blows.

Commercial A. C. to Stage 36 Rounds of Boxing

By Ringade.

There will be thirty-six rounds of boxing at the Commercial A. C. show tonight. Matchmaker Ringade was obliged to make several changes in his original card. It is now finally arranged a program which is sure to furnish the fans with a series of thrilling moments.

Harry Smith of Manchester will fight in a number of ten rounds. It is one of the hardest fighting in the history of this section of the ring and it is sure to be a winner. Harry Smith of the West End and San Lafoe of Whitman will swap punches in another ten-round affair. Both of these boys have been frequent performers in local rings, and have usually given satisfaction.

Bob North of New York will have his first fight of the season at an open in an eight-round affair. Both North and Whitman will make good punches and will be a heavy fight.

"The De Witt means, literally," the white," and Wittman, Witte man and Wittler "white man."

Individual instances, such as the family name of the Wittmans, have evolved from the similar English names of Whittier, Whitt, and White. The name of the Wittmans in which the names occur among the Arthur Judge waited until he heard a door on the upper floor close, then he went out on the veranda and took a chair next to the one occupied by his sister. He sat there for some time, but he had missed in silence for a while, "What?"

"About Barbara and John?"

"Yes," she said. She developed slowly, but surely

There are thousands of families in the United States today by the names of this group whose ancestors came to this country from Germany and never lived England.

"I have heard of you, of course, not," she said.

She loved him.

Mrs. Cynthia interrupted Barbara's reminiscences and said, "I am, although you must see Robert. I think, loves her?"

"How far as I can see, and hear, Robert Elliott is a very fine chap," Arthur LaSalle said.

"I don't know," Barbara said, and a look of irritation came to her face.

Fateful Days

Certain days of the week in the month have constantly been known in some person's lives. Nearly all the chief events of Thomas Hackett's career, including murder and the translation of body to tomb, had happened on the 13th of the month. The Poesy of Cake
I wonder if most lucky housekeepers have ever stopped to think of the poetry of cake. I got to thinking about it the other day when tea finished, and the children back at play. I rested for a few minutes before putting away the tea things. We had had Mrs. Lundy's cake for tea, several slices of it lay on the cake

There are, as my neighbor, Mrs. Howard, and I have agreed no places where good bread shows up for what it is worth, or poor bread shows up for what it is not worth, more emphatically, than in the things from which bread is made. For instance, a poor

"Very much," said I. "Then you will like Foster's Peanut Butter," said he. "For Foster's is nothing but the best of fresh peanuts, roasted just right, and salted with the finest of table salt." I have my answer to thank for bringing me to Foster's.

"Why, I take my cream, and I take my churn, and I mix in my experience," said she. Perhaps that is what Speed's makers have in mind with their nut oils and rich milk extract. That, probably, and what Aunt Mandy forgot to mention—their common sense. Try a pound and see.

George U. Crocker's Attack on Democracy

Mr. George U. Crocker, though a sincere man in his views on public questions such as they are, has never so distinguished himself in any walk of life that his views on fundamentals of human affairs are of particular consequence except so far as they reflect the views of his class.

Without doubt Mr. Crocker's attack upon democracy and his belief in a government by the few and his contempt for the alleged ignorance of the average man does reflect the view of Mr. Crocker's class.

Mr. Crocker inherited his wealth. Such education as he received came to him without effort. Such income as he has is a gift of fortune. His ability neither the public nor he himself is able to estimate because he has never been obliged to try it out. The steel in him has never struck spark with the steel in others in the struggle of life for the survival of the fit. He was never thrown overboard like the great mass of humanity to sink or swim, survive or perish. Fortune has kept him on the bank in the grateful shade when the day is hot and in the warm sun when the day is cold.

The unspeakable conceit of men of that class who assume because they have an education out of books that they know more than their fellows who have had an education in the bitter and sweet school of experience in the struggle for existence is without any parallel among the extraordinary phases of the human character.

Democracy these days needs no defense. Its worth does not need to be justified by such gentlemen as Mr. Crocker. As Napoleon said about the French republic: "It is like the sun in heaven, all the worse for those who can't see it."

It is sufficient to say concerning democracy that wherever it has existed in the world, whether in the ancient or modern world, it has excelled in every art and science known to man, including the arts of war as well as the arts of peace.

All the great achievements that have stood as monuments of the ancient world and which have come down to us as permanent contributions to civilization have come from the nations which were in their day the most democratic on the earth and about all that is worth while in the civilization of the world, except science in Germany, has been given us by democracy.

Rejecting Water Power Bill Great Public Service

The Massachusetts Legislature has rejected, upon the advice of the Committee on Ways and Means, a bill providing for the exploitation of our public natural water power by private individuals under a State contract. The American has opposed this bill vigorously for three years. It is a great relief, however, to have a committee reject the proposal on its own accord.

We are informed that the Committee on Ways and Means struck out all the active features of the bill and reported it in a harmless condition upon the advice and after the special investigation of Representative Shattuck of Boston. This was a splendid bit of public service. None of us will ever know how much of a service Mr. Shattuck particularly rendered by his investigation and his upstanding report against this scheme, but through its years, if the scheme is killed permanently, the State will be saved millions of dollars in all human probability. If Mr. Shattuck continues in this spirit he will be a great asset to our public affairs for he unites intelligence, industry and public spirit with progressive disinterested point of view. This kind of a man is rare and when we have "his adoption of the bill" we ought to hold him with bonds as strong as Shakespeare suggested to hold a friend.

Nor should we forget to appreciate the service of the Ways and Means Committee and Representative Hartsborn of that committee.

The Boxing Commission

The passage of the bill legalizing professional boxing, in cities and towns which shall accept the act, with only a handful of dissenting votes, shows how radical is the change of public sentiment in regard to this form of sport.

The experience with boxing in the training camps for our soldiers clearly showed us that the old-time and well founded sentiment against a prize fight has no application to a well-regulated game contest. The only question as to the future of boxing in this State is in the kind of oversight and control which shall be exercised by the commission to be appointed by the Governor; the bill gives the commissioners all power to control the entire boxing situation.

The House has passed a good bill. The Senate will undoubtedly follow suit. Then every friend of a clean sport should sustain Governor Coolidge in selecting the men who are real friends of the sport with no axes to grind.

Help Enforce New Sugar Law

We call the attention of the citizens of this State to the fact that a law has just been passed prohibiting anyone from requiring a certain amount of purchases of other articles as a condition upon the sale of sugar. This little excursion in profiteering by some retail stores is now declared by the law to be a misdemeanor and punishable by a fine of $100.

The American was the first newspaper in Boston to call the attention of the public to this abuse and we are particularly pleased that it now stands condemned by the law. If anybody thinks that the law is being violated, let him or her write to the District Attorney in their county. All one needs to do is to address a letter to the District Attorney at the courthouse in the county where he lives.

More Truth Than Poetry

ALL IS WELL

By S. E. RISER

TIME'S forever smoothing down the jagged hills
Making fair the slopes;
Healing wounds and soothing people's aches and ills.
Bringing later hopes.

IN the dismal places that through all the past
Have been haunts of Care,
Joy has brightened faces, banishing the last
Traces of despair.

BRANCHES still are swaying and the winds are sweet
Where the orchards bloom;
Boys and girls are playing in the narrow street,
Driving out the gloom.

PRESENTLY forgetting all your present pain,
You will cease to fear,
That your sun is setting, and set forth again
Where the way is clear.

HAPPINESS is ringing down through dale and dell
Where the streams were red;
Lark and thrush are singing bravely: "All is well,
June is just ahead."

PRESENTLY the sorrow that besets you now
Time will coax away;
Fearlessly, tomorrow, you may wonder how
Doubt came yesterday.

THERE SEEMS TO BE NO SUCH THING

Mr. Hines, former Director-General of the Railroads, says the railway service in this country will be unsatisfactory for several years. What does he mean service?

HERE HEARSAY

Announce, it is said, insists that everything he says must be favored liberally with as little. This may help you to understand how he has been able to become a tower of strength.

Y^e TOWNE GOSSIP

Registered U. S. Patent Office.

By K. C. B.

DEAR K. C. B.—Many years have I read your drivel and felt that some time we would meet and I would bring your hand or neck for the quack cheer you have spread. But now I am in trouble and need your help.

It all started 300 years ago, when for religious reasons my people were driven out of France, and after years of wandering were given a tract of land by the King of Denmark, which then, as now, was called All Saints' Town.

I loved my grandfather and France, and as all my forefathers had been soldiers, it was but natural I should want to put my career between Germany and beloved France. Then, just before the second draft, my son, who was seventeen, wrote me: "Dad, you are too old, but I am big and strong. I think it is my duty to go."

The nerve of the boy! Too old to be shot? I wrote the kid back to fight for the old, the crippled, the women and the children was not a duty but a sacred privilege. And so I committed perjury and registered in the second draft. It didn't matter, for then the bottom dropped out of Germany, and I fell from the frying pan into the ash can.

Now, I get all mailed up when I tell of what happened in the eighteen, and I can't vote or anything. If I register I must swear to my age, and I've lied about that, and what can I do?

Los Angeles, Cal.

MY DEAR K. C. B.—
IF I WOULD
I WOULDN'T worry about it.
I'D JUST pray.

AND ADMIT I lied.
AND ASK forgiveness.
AND IN all probability.

THE LORD will say:
"HERE'S A man.
"WHO ADMITS he lied.
"TO INVITE the draft."

"AND THERE'S so many others.
"WHO I'll write and lie.
"TO EVAS the draft."

"AND HE must be all right.
"OR HE wouldn't worry.
"AND I guess I'll forgive him."

I REMEMBER.
WHEN I was a kid,
AND THERE was a circus.
AND AT the weekly meeting.

OF the Band of Hope.
THE MINISTER said:
THAT HE had some tickets.

AND WOULD all of the children.
WHO WERE over twelve.
HOLD UP their hands.

AND I wasn't twelve.
BUT I lied about it.

AND HELD up my hand.
AND THE minister said:
"ALL OF these.
"WHO HELD up their hands.

"WILL be dismissed.
"AND THOSE under twelve.
"WILL REMAIN in the room."

AND, ANYWAY.
THOSE UNDER twelve.
THEY ALL got tickets.

AND THOSE over twelve.
AND THOSE who lied.
DIDN'T go to the circus.

AND EVER since then.
I'VE TOLD the truth.
EXCEPTING ONE time.

WHEN I told a little boy.
HIS LITTLE baby sister.
WAS FOUND under a cabbage.

GROZIER'S EDITION OF NOVELS IN BRIEF

EDWIN A. GROZIER of Boston is the editor of "One Hundred Best Novels Condensed," a work just published in four volumes by Harper & Brothers.

Mr. Grozier is owner and editor of the Boston Post, in which newspaper the condensations appeared in serial form.

He brought to his task the trained newspaperman's knowledge of what might be selected without sacrifice of sense or literary charm and where. The result is a happy one. He has realized in large measure the immortal dream of compilers and editors—that of bringing the masterpieces of the ages under the hand and eye of the casual reader in acceptable form.

The preface to the work is characteristically unpretentious. The editor announces that his two-fold object was to "enable the busy casual reader to become acquainted with the masterpieces of fiction and to induce readers to seek the great originals."

What the Appetite

That double purpose is accomplished to the full. The little stories are not substitutes. They are not dull, the literary appetite. They dispose of the belief of the over-busy or the over-lazy that good books are only for the few. They may be trusted to do more to encourage popular reading of works worth while than any similar collection in years.

Mr. Grozier admits in his preface that extra emphasis is given to English and American novels. This is so partly because of the difficulty of getting interesting translations of many of the writers popular abroad.

He also points out that he has in his selections been forced to exclude certain authors because to have included them would have meant to overlook his collection with writers of a certain school.

A few particulars may content that their favorites have been unjustly excluded from the list. A few may doubt the right of one or two of Mr. Grozier's selections. But in the main the editor of "One Hundred Best Novels Condensed" has shown a sense of proportion and selection that leaves little to be desired.

Mr. Grozier, in his choice of subordinate editors to make the condensations, showed equally good judgment. There were authors in the list who were not in the list. Cyrus Townsend Brundage, Basil James H. Connolly and John Edgar Hoover. But there was no striving after mere names. The condensations themselves are masterpieces. In every instance, the significance of the novel is preserved. In nearly every instance even the form and the style are hinted at in the necessarily brief resume.

Scarcely less interesting than the condensations are the short life sketches of the authors, which accompany them. Those sketches have real literary merit in themselves. There are also excellent little portraits of the authors whose works are reproduced in abbreviated form.

The First Fifty

Mr. Grozier in his preface announces that any criticism of his selections will not deal with the first fifty books chosen for consideration on the safe ground.

The selections could scarcely be bettered.

Among them are such literary landmarks as "David Copperfield," "The History of Frederick," "The Viceroy," "The Marble Faun," "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," "The Master of Ballantrae," "Robinson Crusoe," "The Turn of Mind," "The Viceroy of Wakefield" and "Lorna Doone."

The Boston editor in his foreword gives special appreciative testimony to the assistance received from Professors William Francis Morris and Charles T. Copeland of Harvard.

He is equally complimentary to the staff of revisionists who enabled him to turn out a work of this literary value. The impressive list includes such names as William Howard Taft, Samuel W. McCall, United States Senator David I. Walsh, Rev. Paul Reverend Woodbridge and Mrs. Lora Anderson, besides many professional writers and professors of literature.

The books are beautifully gotten up on good quality paper and substantially bound.

RADIATION OF SUN IS LIKE HOT STOVE

By Garrett P. Serviss

"We have been taught to believe that our earth is heated by heat radiated from the sun. I want to know how this heat is radiated—or is it radiated? Is it radiated in much the same manner as heat is radiated from a hot stove?—L. E. H. Drakeville, Jr., N. Y."

I SUPPOSE that you want to know both how the heat arises in the sun and how it is transmitted across space to the earth. The radiation of the sun resembles that of a hot stove in being transmitted by vibrations of what is called "the ether," but the source of the sun's heat is different from that of the stove's heat.

The stove is composed of solid iron heated by the combustion, or burning, of coal or wood. The sun is composed of substances, including iron, which are not in the solid but in the gaseous or vaporous state, and their heat is derived not from burning but, according to the theory that has generally been accepted in modern times, from the effects of tremendous compression, under which the stupendous body of the sun gradually shrinks and is thereby intensely heated.

In the sun the compression is produced by gravitational attraction drawing all the particles of that gigantic globe, 866,000 miles in diameter, toward their common center. It has been shown mathematically that a contraction of the sun's diameter of only 260 feet per year would suffice to produce and maintain its tremendous temperature of 6,000 or 7,000 degrees centigrade.

Now, for its radiation. There is here a chance for a play upon words which persons who suppose that sort of mental gymnastics to be reasoning, never fail to seize. The heat is not heat while it is traveling space, and neither is the light of the sun light in similar circumstances. Both are simply radiant energy conveyed through the ether in the form of vibrations.

When they strike the earth, or some other body capable of being set into molecular vibration by them, they produce the sensations which we call light and heat. In like manner the atmospheric waves which produce the sensation of sound when they strike our ears are not really sound, but the cause of sound. But it is a waste of time and of meditation to dispute over such things. It was that kind of folly that maddened the minds of all men in olden days.

To the Editor State Is Fortunate

Editor Boston American:

As one of the numerous friends of Mr. Bernard J. Rothwell, I wish to take this opportunity to express publicly my appreciation of your splendid editorial of May 17, entitled, "Rothwell's Appointment as Insurance Trustee."

The citizens of Massachusetts must consider themselves fortunate in having secured, through Governor Coolidge's appointment, the services of Mr. Rothwell in the capacity of trustee of the State Insurance Guaranty Fund.

But this is not the first time that Mr. B. J. Rothwell has been entrusted with a very great public service. Those who know him well know that he has been connected with the State Insurance Bureau since that time, and that the foundation for a far-reaching, efficient organization which, having been under Mr. Rothwell's active supervision during the first two years of its development, is now an important factor in making Massachusetts a full American State. HERMAN D. ROSS, New Bedford, Mass.

Shirtwaists for Men

Editor Boston American:

In these days of high cost of clothes (and everything else) a line of ideas that I have harbored for years would be truly economical and save many thousands of dollars to the long-suffering spectators of the Summer and sweater women to wear a very thin waist on any and all occasions. Why can't the same privileges be proposed for men to wear shirtwaists or negligee shirts? I do not conserve cloth in countless yards and one laborer's waste! If it became the style in reading, Mass.
